

NORTH RIVER NAVIGATORS

In a Bustle of Preparation for the Early Opening of the Hudson.

The Hudson River is virtually open to Newburgh, the rains having sunk a good deal of the floating ice. But ice is massed in the Highlands, and at Dour's Point the ice floes are blocked and heaped up twenty feet, with the Mohawk yet to hear from, so that with a cold snap a complete blockade may easily be established, in spite of the promise of an early opening. The longest recorded blockade was the 120 days ending April 4, 1836. In 1842 the river was open Feb. 4, and in 1857 on Feb. 26. Since 1817 the average dates of opening and closing have been Dec. 15 and Jan. 21.

All the steamboat lines are preparing for an early opening. The steamboats, Saratoga and City, are now in full blast, and the great bands of the engineers and decorators, and are ready to start this week. The St. John and Beau Hindon, with open deck, are now in full blast. The St. John has new boilers, and her furniture, fixtures, and decorations have been thoroughly overhauled. The Drew is now dry docked, and the crew are at work. The hull is to 70 men are at work on her. The repairs will be completed in April, and she will be used as an extra boat. The St. John, with open deck, made on March 10, wind and weather permitting. The agents do not, however, care much about an early start, for they say that the loss in business is trifling. In 1873 their first boat went up the river on April 3; in 1880 on March 10, and in 1881 on March 21.

Styles Displayed at the Co-operative Dress Association's Opening.

The opening of the spring suits by the Co-operative Dress Association, yesterday, emphasized in the most satisfactory manner the objects and aim of the association. The suits displayed on the forms were marked at cooperative prices. For instance, one lot of combination sarah and cashmere suits, all made after the same model, basques and short trimmed skirts, are marked $120. Another model, also in sarah suits, with alternate shirrings and pleatings on the skirt, and a white or black silk waist, $100. Another line of marvelously costumes are marked $25. Another line of sarahs, with open backs, with matching veils, matching veils, and matching hats, which have never been before. When the proprietor ordered him, he went from the place, and that is the last I have seen of him. The price of the garment of my coat, but I have made my choice and will abide by it.
